

MKONO GLOBAL
EXECUTION AS A SERVICE

Mkono Global Ownership Structure

ARCHIVED · FOUNDATIONAL RECORD

The permanent record of Mkono Global's ownership model — how the company is structured, why this structure was chosen, and how it will scale.

*****

CHOSEN OWNERSHIP MODEL

Sister Companies Under Common Ownership

The same founders own both Mkono Global LLC (USA) and Mkono Global Kenya Limited. Neither company owns the other. Each has its own responsibilities, its own legal standing, and its own compliance obligations. Together they operate under one brand, delivering one customer experience.

WHAT THIS DOCUMENT CONTAINS

- 01 The Ownership Structure — How Mkono Global Is Owned
- 02 The Two Companies — Roles and Responsibilities
- 03 Why This Model Fits Mkono Global
- 04 Scalability — How Mkono Global Expands into New Countries
- 05 Future Consideration — The Holding Company Model
- 06 Share Capital & Paid-Up Capital — Mkono Global Kenya Limited
- 07 Archive Statement — The Permanent Record of This Decision

SECTION 01

The Ownership Structure

Mkono Global operates through two legal entities — one in the United States, one in Kenya — both owned by the same founders. This is known as common ownership: neither company is the parent of the other, and neither company owns the other. They are sister companies, cooperating under one brand, each with its own purpose.

The customer sees one Mkono Global. Behind that experience, two legally independent companies cooperate — one managing the client relationship from the USA, one executing the task on the ground in Kenya. The coordination between them is seamless because they share the same ownership, the same values, and the same standards.

- ✓ The same founders own both companies
- ✓ Each company has its own legal responsibilities
- ✓ Each company can sign its own contracts
- ✓ Each company hires its own employees under its local law
- ✓ Each company complies with its own jurisdiction's regulations
- ✓ Both companies operate under one brand: Mkono Global

SECTION 02

The Two Companies — Roles and Responsibilities

Each company has a clearly defined role. They do not compete for the same responsibilities. They do not overlap. One creates the conditions for trust. The other delivers the proof of it.

Mkono Global LLCUSA · CUSTOMER RELATIONSHIP
DIVISION

- ▶ Diaspora client relationships and trust-building
- ▶ Brand representation in the diaspora
- ▶ Business development, partnerships, marketing
- ▶ Infrastructure, systems, and technology development
- ▶ Customer escalations beyond the execution layer
- ▶ US legal and regulatory compliance

Mkono Global Kenya LimitedKENYA · EXECUTION OPERATIONS
DIVISION

- ▶ Receiving and processing all execution requests
- ▶ Client communication during active execution
- ▶ Execution Intelligence and Operational Memory
- ▶ Ground operations, procurement, logistics
- ▶ Quality assurance and evidence collection
- ▶ Kenyan legal and regulatory compliance

THE CRITICAL DISTINCTION

Neither company is “above” the other operationally. Mkono Global LLC does not direct the ground operation. Mkono Global Kenya Limited does not manage the client relationship. Each company is essential. Neither exists solely to serve the other. Together they deliver the experience the customer knows as Mkono Global.

SECTION 03

Why This Model Fits Mkono Global

The common ownership model was chosen because it matches how Mkono Global actually works. The business was never one company pretending to be two. It was always two distinct functions — relationship and execution — operating as one brand. The structure follows the reality, not the other way around.

THE PHILOSOPHY BEHIND THE STRUCTURE

- ✓ One brand
- ✓ Two specialized companies
- ✓ One purpose
- ✓ Neither company exists solely to serve the other
- ✓ Both companies are essential to delivering the customer experience

The Advantages of Common Ownership for Mkono Global

|                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|---------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Neither company is above the other          | The US company and the Kenyan company are legal equals. This matches the operational reality — one does not direct the other. Both contribute equally to the customer outcome.                                                |
| Each company can focus on what it does best | Mkono Global LLC focuses entirely on customer relationships, partnerships, brand, and technology. Mkono Global Kenya Limited focuses entirely on execution. Neither is distracted by the other’s responsibilities.            |
| Each company complies locally               | US tax law, employment law, and business regulations apply to Mkono Global LLC. Kenyan company law, employment law, and local regulations apply to Mkono Global Kenya Limited. Each company is clean in its own jurisdiction. |
| The structure is simple and transparent     | Common ownership is easy to explain to regulators, investors, partners, and clients. The same people own both companies. The brand is shared. The operation is separated by geography and function.                           |

SECTION 04

Scalability — How Mkono Global Expands

The common ownership model scales naturally. When Mkono Global is ready to operate in Uganda, Tanzania, Rwanda, or any other country, the structure does not need to change. A new locally incorporated company is added under the same common ownership. Each new country company operates its own Execution Operations Division on the ground, following the same operational standards as Mkono Global Kenya Limited.

Each new country company adds execution capacity without changing the architecture. The USA company remains the Customer Relationship Division for all diaspora clients. The country companies handle execution on the ground in their respective territories. The customer still experiences one Mkono Global.

THE EXPANSION PRINCIPLE

Expanding into a new country does not require restructuring what already exists. It simply adds a new sister company under the same ownership. One phone call to a local lawyer, one incorporation, one new Execution Operations Division. The operational standards, the brand, and the ownership structure remain unchanged.

SECTION 05

Future Consideration — The Holding Company Model

As Mkono Global grows, there may come a point where a holding company structure becomes advantageous. This is common for larger international groups. It is not the right structure today, but it is worth understanding so that the path to it is clear when the time comes.

|                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|---------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| When to consider it | When Mkono Global reaches a scale where strategic investment, international tax planning, or governance across multiple country companies requires a coordinating entity above them.                                               |
| What it adds        | A single legal entity that owns all country companies. Simplifies investor relationships, profit distribution, and cross-border governance at scale.                                                                               |
| Why not now         | It introduces additional legal and tax complexity that is not justified at the current stage. Starting with common ownership today preserves the full flexibility to restructure later without disrupting what is already working. |

THE TRANSITION IS STRAIGHTFORWARD WHEN READY

If Mkono Global later decides to create a holding company, the transition from common ownership is well-understood legally. A new holding entity is incorporated, and ownership of the subsidiary companies transfers to it. The operating companies continue exactly as before. No disruption to operations.

SECTION 06

Share Capital & Paid-Up Capital

The following share capital structure applies to Mkono Global Kenya Limited at the time of incorporation. This section is provided as a formal registration record and reflects the recommended structure for a company at this stage of operations.

Share Capital Table

| Class of Shares | Number of Shares Issued | Nominal Value Per Share | Total Nominal Value |
|-----------------|-------------------------|-------------------------|---------------------|
| Ordinary Shares | 100,000                 | KES 1                   | KES 100,000         |
| Total           | 100,000                 | —                       | KES 100,000         |

Paid-Up Capital

All 100,000 ordinary shares are fully paid up at KES 1 per share. There is no unpaid capital. This keeps the company records clean and straightforward from the date of incorporation.

Why This Structure Was Chosen

|                                 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|---------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Simple and transparent          | 100,000 shares at KES 1 each is easy to understand, easy to explain to regulators, investors, and partners, and immediately clear in all company records.                                                                                               |
| Ownership percentages are exact | With 100,000 shares, ownership percentages map directly to share numbers. 51,000 shares = 51% ownership. No complex calculations required.                                                                                                              |
| Flexible for the future         | The structure leaves ample room for future share transfers, new investors, or restructuring if the business reaches a scale that requires it. Nothing is locked that does not need to be locked.                                                        |
| No large capital requirement    | KES 100,000 is the recommended starting capital for a company at this stage. A larger share capital does not add credibility — it adds complexity. The business value of Mkono Global is in its operational track record, not its share capital figure. |

REGISTRATION NOTE FOR MKONO GLOBAL KENYA LIMITED

The form should read: Share Capital: KES 100,000, divided into 100,000 ordinary shares of KES 1 each, all fully paid up. Paid up per share: KES 1. Unpaid: KES 0.

SECTION 07

Archive Statement

This document is the permanent record of the ownership structure chosen for Mkono Global at the time of incorporation and formal organization. It is archived alongside the Mission, Vision, Promise to Customers, and other foundational documents that define who Mkono Global is and how it is built.

PERMANENT FOUNDATIONAL RECORD

Mkono Global Ownership Structure — Sister Companies Under Common Ownership

This structure was chosen because it matches Mkono Global’s operating reality: one brand, two specialized companies, one purpose. Neither company owns the other. The US company builds client confidence. The Kenyan company delivers proof of it. Both are essential. Neither exists solely to serve the other.

|                  |                                                                   |
|------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Ownership Model  | Sister Companies Under Common Ownership                           |
| Company 1        | Mkono Global LLC · Delaware, USA · Incorporated May 2026          |
| Company 2        | Mkono Global Kenya Limited · Republic of Kenya                    |
| Common Owners    | Josephat Kingori Wahome (Josh) & Other Owners                     |
| Relationship     | Sister Companies — Neither owns the other                         |
| Future Model     | Holding Company (to be considered at scale, not at incorporation) |
| Document Date    | July 2026                                                         |
| Archive Category | Foundational Company Documents                                    |